For those who have been anticipating the latest HTC HD2, it seems that this particular smartphone is available for American users pretty soon. According to T-Mobile website, they have branded the phone as coming soon , and I m pretty sure that it will be released sometime around the end of March.

Also, the HTC HD2 features a large 4.3 inch display, and it even runs on the Windows Mobile 6.5 as its operating system. Also, it seems that this particular smartphone might come bundled with the functionality that allows users to download On Demand movies straight into the device.

Well it seems that the HTC HD2 might be priced somewhere at $199.99, in which it will be available on contract, while the unlocked version might be priced somewhere at $449.99.
