Surely, I m pretty positive that you might have heard of news stating that the Wii is indeed a very good exercising motivating machine. Generally, there are so many exercising programs available for the Wii console, but surely the hype has pretty much died down recently.

Nevertheless, EA Sports has recently launched their latest Active 2.0 device, with hopes of re-hyping the entire Wii mania. On the other hand, the Active 2.0 devices are also available for the PS3, iPod touch, and you can even use it on your iPhone.

Not sure when EA Sports plans to release the Active 2.0, but perhaps these devices can generate a little bit more hype for Wii?
